CURRENT MARKET REPORT

The markets ended last week on shaky ground no thanks to rumors of possible shutdowns in packing plants due to Covid outbreaks. Those rumors were unfounded, and the markets once again found footing and are approaching the October 1st—15th highs. Grains have shown some weakness and if we can keep the economy rolling, the cattle market should stay up. Consumption is strong and coupled with the cutout soaring, this lends confidence moving forward. If businesses can remain open and consumption remains high, along with cow herd numbers dropping, one can only be optimistic for the cow/calf producer or feeder moving into 2021
