CURRENT MARKET REPORT

Happy New Year. Wednesday's crop report sent corn prices limit up for the day, and I expect we will see carryover buying into Thursday. Consequently, high feed costs are sending the feeder cattle futures and cash feeder prices tumbling down. In my mind, we probably won't see any reprieve to the grain prices until new seed is in the ground and well on it's way to germination. Due to the high price of grain, one can expect record acreage planted this year, barring any major drought, that alone will lend support to feeder cattle prices this fall. Finished cattle prices continue to climb as packers seem to have bought short. There is a lot of talk out there in regards to food inflation similar to what we are seeing in grain markets. Currently one can only hope the packers get into a situation where they are forced to compete harder for finished cattle, consequently pushing the whole livestock complex higher. Only tighter meat supplies will do that, which we will only see in Q3 and Q4 of 2021.
