CURRENT MARKET REPORT

The weather up until this point, has been incredible for cattlemen and feed-lots alike. Daily gains have been well above expectations, and that has lent to positive closeouts on some cattle that maybe otherwise wouldn't have been, if it weren't for the incredible conversions that were had. The rancher has benefitted from the warmer weather as well; with the cost of feed where it's at, everyone enjoys the fact that the cows are getting along really easy for the past 60 days, when normally it might be a bit of a struggle. Feeder Cattle prices have been good to start the year and the cattle futures, although volatile, look good moving forward. It appears that everyone is getting some much needed moisture and the mercury is dropping towards more seasonal values for the short term anyways. One big change we will see for 2024 only is the date change for the Williams Lake Equipment Sale which will now be May 11, 2024. This change is to help out some very important team members with some overlapping dates. Stay warm.
